Holocaust Survivors, Liberators Featured in Exhibit at ETHS

Knoxville -- Larger than life size, black and white portraits of Holocaust refugees and liberators convey a powerful story in an exhibit opening at the East Tennessee History Center on July 17.

Sponsored locally by the East Tennessee Historical Society, the "Living On," exhibition was organized by the Tennessee Holocaust Commission and has traveled throughout the state. It will be displayed in Knoxville through October 22. Robert Heller, a University of Tennessee professor, was the primary photographer for the project, and Will Pedigo, an alumnus, produced an Emmy Award-winning documentary on the exhibit.

For more information on the Living On exhibit, visit the Holocaust Commission Web site at <http://www.tennesseeholocaustcommission.org/livingon.html>. Or contact: Tamara Ownby, ETHS, (tamara@east-tennessee-history.org, 865-215-8883)

Tennessee Fall Homecoming at the Museum of Appalachia, October 12 – 15. For more information call 865-494-7680, or e-mail museumappalachia@bellsouth.net. The Museum is located 16 miles north of Knoxville, one mile east of I-75, exit 122. <http://www.museumofappalachia.com/>
